JURISPRUDENCE

(Paper 3.2)

INTRODUCTION:

Jurisprudence, often called the philosophy or science of law, provides the foundational understanding of what law is, how it develops, and how it operates within society. It examines the nature, purpose, and function of law—probing questions of justice, rights, duties, ownership, and sovereignty. The study of jurisprudence enables students to appreciate law not merely as a set of rules but as a dynamic social institution influenced by morality, politics, economics, and culture. It forms the intellectual backbone of legal education, sharpening analytical and interpretive skills necessary for understanding and applying the law.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

1. To understand the nature, scope, and significance of jurisprudence in legal study.
2. To analyse various schools of legal thought and their influence on modern legal systems.
3. To explain fundamental legal concepts such as rights, duties, ownership, possession, liability, and person.
4. To evaluate legal theories and philosophies concerning justice, sovereignty, and law's relationship with morality.
5. To apply jurisprudential principles to contemporary legal and social issues, including human rights, technology, and globalization.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

After successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Define and differentiate between key jurisprudential terms and theories.
2. Critically assess different schools of jurisprudence and their practical relevance.
3. Interpret and apply concepts of rights, duties, and legal relations using Hohfeldian analysis.

ELECTION LAWS

(Paper 3.5.1)

INTRODUCTION:

The study of Election Laws is a vital component of constitutional and democratic governance. This course introduces students to the legal and institutional framework governing elections — the foundation of representative democracy. It explores how laws regulate the conduct of elections, the qualification and disqualification of candidates, political parties, campaign finance, and electoral disputes. Students will analyze both constitutional provisions and statutory mechanisms that ensure free and fair elections, drawing on judicial decisions and comparative perspectives from other democracies. The course also examines the role of the Election Commission, electoral reforms and emerging challenges, such as the use of technology and social media in elections.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

1. To introduce students to the constitutional and statutory framework governing elections in India.
2. To understand the role of the Election Commission of India (ECI) and the principles of free and fair elections.
3. To critically examine electoral processes, disputes and reforms through case laws and comparative perspectives.
4. To analyze electoral offences, disqualifications and accountability mechanisms.
5. To foster informed understanding of democratic governance, representation and electoral ethics.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

On the successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Explain the constitutional provisions and institutional framework for elections in India.
2. Analyze and interpret the Representation of the People Acts (1950 & 1951) and related statutory rules.

HUMAN RIGHTS

(Paper 3.5.4)

INTRODUCTION:

“Human rights” are rights inherent to all human beings, regardless of our nationality, residence, sex, and gender identity, national or ethnic origin, color, religion, language or any other status. We are all equally entitled to our human rights without discrimination. This is the modern concept of our fundamental rights but it was not always this way. The belief that everyone, by virtue of her or his humanity, is entitled to certain human rights is fairly new and is something stemming from an evolution of the consideration of human dignity over the last centuries. Its roots lie in earlier tradition and documents of many cultures.

In view of the above this course is designed to Trace the evolution of human rights, Contextualise various human rights issues, Understand the relationship between Fundamental Rights, Constitutional Rights and Human Rights, Identify the enforcement mechanism of human rights at the national and state level and Attribute the role of civil society and other non-state actors in the protection of human rights and additionally to Generate ideas for better implementation of human rights laws in India.
